Remedies

Life is an ongoing story, so are marriages. Not all marriages are happy; some are works in progress and need extra efforts to turn them into success stories. Where there is love, commitment and trust, even the most difficult of marriages can become a love saga. Patience is a vital trait that can help solve even the gravest of issues. Jealousy will turn to trust and hate will become love, all through the patient dealings of the couple. But all is not in our hands. Conflicts are the result of not just our mindset or attitude; it is also because of planetary influences.

The last hymn of the Rigveda, Mandala 10 suktham 191, also known as the Samana Suktham or Aikamatya Suktham is the hymn of equality and unity. This prayer has the power to bring people together. Chanting this prayer helps people unite and work towards one goal.

For a couple who would like to work on their marriage, Aikamathya Suktham is perfect. It helps develop friendship between the individuals and resolves disputes between them.

Afterword

Marriage compatibility analysis is most relevant in arranged marriages where a couple has no existing close relationship. It is important to note that in ancient texts "Mano Anukool Prathamam Prashastham," are mentioned, which means that mental compatibility is of foremost importance. Also, among the eight types of classical marriage types, Vedas have defined 'Gandharva Vivaha' which is like what we term today as love marriage. This ancient marriage tradition was based on mutual attraction between two people.

Astrology indicates what is likely to happen. Your will and determination plays a significant role in shaping your future and the future of any relationship. The bond between you and your life partner is based on a promise to love, respect and support each other through the joys and tribulations in life. There is no pair of birth stars that can give 10/10 marks in compatibility. This is because no one is born perfect hence the harmony in any relationship varies from time to time. A successful relationship calls for mutual compromise and reciprocal support. Relationships gain strength when partners willingly choose to work through problems and issues together as a team.

We hope this report helped you to know more about each other and helped you in understanding what is working and where effort is needed.
